The Policy on Social and Electronic Media and the Use of Electronic Devices in the School of Social Work, is based on the CASW Code of Ethics (2005), and the following principles:

- Respect for the individual
- Professionalism
- Confidentiality
- Integrity
- Competence
- Accountability
- Collaboration

The School of Social Work recognises the effectiveness of electronic devices in education and research, and the potential for misuse. However, the use of electronic devices in education and research must be done in a responsible and ethical manner. The School of Social Work recognises the effectiveness of electronic devices in education and research, and the potential for misuse. However, the use of electronic devices in education and research must be done in a responsible and ethical manner.

This policy applies to all St. Thomas University social work students in all aspects of their studies, including participation in field practicums and research. This policy does not preclude using social media to undertake research or recruit research participants, subject to approval by a research ethics board.

Students are advised to refer to the following resources for more information on the use of electronic devices in education and research:
